

Inquiry Proves Death Of Boy Was Accidental

Little Walter Witw, aged seven years, who met with an accident at N. Bawlf elevator on Tuesday of last week as reported in our previous issue, passed away at the hospital in Edmonton, early on Wednesday morning.

Following his death an operation was performed by Dr. A. Macbeth assisted by Dr. H. Wallace in the hopes of saving life, but such was not to be. The body was shipped to town on Wednesday, and the funeral was held at Bruce on Friday afternoon.

An inquest conducted by Coroner Dr. Wallace on Thursday went fully into all the circumstances surrounding the accident and after due deliberation Mr. W. Knowles, as foreman of the jury composed of Messrs. Knowles, E. Gordon, R. Durand, J. Tolmie, D. Davidson and A. Uren rendered the following verdict:

"That Walter Witw died at the Royal Alexandra hospital, Edmonton, about 3.30 a.m. on August 24th, 1927, from a fractured skull, the result of an injury received at about 9 a.m. on August 23rd, 1927, in the C.N.R. yards at Wainwright, a few feet south of the new N. Bawlf elevator now under construction. He was hit on the head by a piece of timber dropped from the top of the elevator building by one of the workmen. That occurrence was purely accidental and no blame can be attached to the contractor or the workmen."

In opening the inquiry, the jury were taken to the former home of the deceased on Sixth avenue, and sworn in view of the father of the child, Mr. Paul Witw. They then returned to the coroner's chamber, where the evidence was taken by the coroner.

The first witness called was Mr. Witw who stated that he was the father of the deceased boy who was seven years old. He said that upon arriving home from his work on the morning of August 23rd about 8 a.m. he found his boy in the room (house) he occupied as to the whereabouts of this son and learned that he was out playing. Just before he was going to bed, he was informed that the boy had been hurt and was at the home of Dr. Wallace. He went at once to the doctor's home and saw the boy who was being attended to by Dr. Wallace. Witness told the coroner that he knew the boy was always around town some place, and that he knew the deceased would take his wagon and go to the new elevator to get chips. He had warned the boy not to go there.

In answer to questions, the witness said "We did not wish the boy to go near the railroad or elevator; we knew it was a dangerous place." James Robinson, agent for the Bawlf elevator, here stated that he was around the elevator on the morning of the accident and saw the little red wagon being attended to by Dr. Wallace. There was another little red wagon with him, too. They were on the south side of the elevator track. The witness heard the men on the roof about "Look out below" as was usual when anything was to be dropped. He saw a piece of two by four lumber dropping from the top of the elevator, and thought it would be about twelve or fourteen feet long. The end of the timber hit the ground and then flopped over and hit the boy, knocking him down. He rushed to the boy and found him unconscious and with a bad wound on his head, and then took him to Dr. Wallace's residence. He did not know who the other little boy was. So far as he knew a warning was always given by the men when anything was to be dropped from above. There seemed to him ample time after the warning was given for anyone to get out of the way because as he looked up after the about he then saw the timber falling. The timber came down on end, and the boy seemed to stand perfectly still about twenty feet from the elevator.

Jardine Hartverson, one of the workmen on the elevator, stated that he was working on the roof, and took the timber which had been used for a "toe-hold" while shingling, from the roof. He held it for a moment while he shouted "Look out below; toe-hold coming down" and then dropped it over the south side of the roof. He could not see below when he was dropping the timber. After he came from the roof he was told that a little boy had been hurt.

In answer to questions by the coroner he said that he did not consider that the shingles nailed to the timber would have any effect on its falling. He had seen the boy two days before and saw him away from the building.

LOCAL TORIES DECIDE TO SEND CONV. DELEGATES

At a meeting held on Thursday last at which there was a fair attendance considering the busy time of year, local Conservatives talked over the advisability of sending delegates to the local Conservative convention to be held in Winnipeg on October 11th next when a leader for that party in the Federal House will be chosen.

The choice of the gathering fell upon Messrs. Frank Bailey, O. Dempsey and Geo. Hudson, and after other matters pertaining to both Federal and Provincial issues had been discussed the meeting adjourned.

MAIL STORM DESTROYS SIX THOUSAND ACRES

MACLEOD — More than 6,000 acres of promising wheat on the south end of the Blood reserve were practically wiped out by a very bad hail storm. The crops damaged belonged to the Indian farmers and many of them expected to thresh around 40 bushels to the acre. Outside of this district very little damage by hail has been reported and although several barns were struck by lightning and one or two farming machines burned up, no serious loss was discovered.

WAINWRIGHT SCHOOLS TO RE-OPEN ON TUE. MORN. NEXT

According to word from the secretary of the School Board, Mr. G. Steel, the Wainwright schools will all re-open for the fall term on Tuesday morning next at NINE o'clock sharp.

The teachers and pupils have all had lots of holidays, and they will doubt return to their respective duties with renewed vigor, to duplicate for the next twelve months the splendid high showing and standing which were achieved by the results of the 1927 exams.

As is usual at the commencement of a new term, there will no doubt be quite a number of wet kiddies who are about to start out on their life's period of scholastic troubles and griefs, and the chance for these is so much better by starting them at the beginning of the term.

For this reason, therefore, it will be well for parents and guardians to read the advt. on page three of this issue and act accordingly. Children who will reach the age of six years by the end of this year are eligible to commence schooling next Tuesday and it is then they are wanted to register at the Principal's office at the school so that they may be placed in their proper classes. Children who have not passed their sixth birthday by the end of this year will NOT be accepted.

The school staff for this year will consist of Principal G. Hollinshead and the Misses Keay, Ryan, Dixon, McLean, Coral Rankin, Barbara Carlyle, Irma Strong, Lola Mabey, Flora Dixon, Margaret Kain.

RICHARD WALLING LIKES AIRPLANES EVEN IN DANGER

Richard Walling, cast as Jimmy the garden boy, in "The Return of Peter Grimm," Fox Films version of David Belasco's gripping stage play has one hobby which takes precedence over all others. He is inordinately fond of airplanes. This peculiar almost bought the young screen favorite to a brief short time ago.

Walling who had a friend engaged in airplane manufacture at Santa Monica, near Los Angeles, decided to call upon one of his hangers "Comel Hop inf" said the ace "Well breeze up a few hundred feet and I'll give you a thrill." "Sure!" said Dick. "Where's the togs?" Walling observed that his friend selected a keen looking plane and busied himself with unusual preparations. Still, the younger actor was not unduly suspicious. Three thousand feet above the Pacific, however, the ace suddenly started shouting "Nope! Dive! Tail spin! Flip-flop! Shoot-the-shutes! Over and over—up and down! Dick got the thrill of his young life all right—but it was all so unexpected Walling came down dizzy and rushed to the studio.

"Anything in my contract about stunt-flying?" he demanded. "No," said the chief. "But there will be. We're hot going to have you killed in any wild air rides." "The Return of Peter Grimm" is the feature picture Friday and Saturday this week and Alec B. Francis may be seen in the finest work of his long and honorable career on the silver-sheet in the role of Peter.

We are sorry to learn that the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Nicholls, who fell off a horse on Saturday last had the misfortune to break his left arm at the wrist. He is going along nicely under the care of Dr. Wallace.

Mr. Gordon Clark of Tatamagouche N.S. was in town for a day or so last week looking after his property interests in town. He was agreeably surprised to see the real crop produced in this district this year.

GENERAL CROP REPORT SHOWS HARVEST FULL SWING

Below will be found a brief synopsis of telegraphic reports received at the Head Office of the Bank of Montreal which shows that in the prairie provinces crops are maturing rapidly. Cutting has started and should be general next week. Considerable lodging of grain has occurred, especially in Alberta, while frost and rust are reported from some sections in Saskatchewan and Manitoba. In Quebec harvesting is now general but settled weather is now needed to assist operations and mature late crops. In contrast to heavy yields of hay and grain in Ontario, indications are that all other crops will be below average. In New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, rust is appearing on potatoes but good average crops are still in prospect and pasture is good. In Prince Edward Island conditions are excellent. In British Columbia weather conditions continue favorable for all crops. Threshing is general and a good average crops of high quality seems assured.

In Alberta's western areas; with favorable weather cutting will be general by end of month except from Lethbridge south where heavy rains have further delayed harvesting. Other prospects generally good. North-eastern Alberta; Grains are maturing rapidly. Cutting has commenced but harvesting will not be general until the end of this week. Southeastern Alberta: The rye crop is cut and cutting of wheat is reported from certain parts and will be general by 31st of August. Saskatchewan, Northern Area: Harvesting should be general by the end of the month. Crops are heavy but yield will be reduced by frost and rust. Southern Area: Some cutting is now being done and late grains are progressing well. Frost has caused extensive damage in certain areas. Manitoba: Cutting of early wheat is under way and should be general by end of the week. It is feared that damage from rust and frost will affect the grades and yields considerably.

Dr. Courcier, who recently purchased the corner house on Queen street, has completed the renovation of the premises and has now moved his family there.

Miss Dawson, who will be the assistant principal at the high school arrived in town last week and with her mother and has rented a house.

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Witw wish to express their heartfelt gratitude to all kind friends for the many tokens of sympathy and love in their recent bereavement, and also for the beautiful floral remembrances.

HUNTERS PREPARE FOR ANNUAL TRIP TO WILD LAIRS

EDMONTON — Big game hunting in Alberta will be in order on and after September 1, when the season for mountain sheep and goats will open. These animals may be hunted until and including the last day of October, with one goat only and one sheep only as the bag allowed on each license.

Deer, moose, and caribou will be in season for hunting from November 1 to December 14, inclusive. Special permits may be obtained, however for September and October hunting in the forest reserves of the mountain regions except in the game preserves of those areas.

Licenses for these special permits for early hunting have been put up to double price as compared with last years, and will now cost the resident hunter $5 in addition to his regular $1 license and the non-resident hunter $50 in addition to the regular $50 license.

Close season will be in force this year on all upland birds except the Hungarian partridge and the jack snipe. (This will include swans and cranes (which are protected under treaty), plover, greater and lesser yellow legs prairie chicken and partridge.)

A steady depletion in the chukker and partridge population for several years past is the reason for shutting down this year on all shooting of these birds.

Ducks, geese and oots or mud-hens may be shot from September 15 to December 14. There is said to be a very good supply of these water fowl in most parts of the province.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE HOLD PLEASANT DANCE

For the purpose of augmenting their funds, the members of the local W.I. staged a little dance at the theatre after the show on Wednesday last. There was a real big attendance for the younger folks and to the tunes of Stoll's orchestra the hours were quickly wiled away. Refreshments were served, and all voted it a real good time.

Mrs. W. Crowe, and her daughter, who have been visiting relatives in the east with Mr. Mother, arrived home last week after a long stay. They claim the west is the best yet.

OPTIMISTIC CROP REPORT ISSUED BY PROV. DEPT.

The whole province gives promise of an excellent crop with high average yields of all kinds of grain, according to Hon. George Hoodley. Late seeding with abundant moisture in the early part of the season, is responsible for the somewhat late ripening of the crops with great regularity. The earlier varieties of wheat, particularly that sown on the lighter land, are now mature and a considerable amount of cutting this grain has already been done. Cutting will not be general however, until the first week of September.

A careful check-up of the frost situation shows that there has been no frost damage except in the very extreme northeastern section of the province. In some isolated districts in this area frost struck rather heavily. Except in the above area, the province is entirely free from frost damage. Hail damage has been more prevalent than usual, with the result that damage from this source will be slight, by greater than average. Rust has appeared from an appearance from this source, however it is negligible.

Notwithstanding the losses caused by the above-mentioned agencies if no further serious losses occur, the province will have the largest total yield of wheat in its history. A particularly significant feature this year is a uniformly good crop in every section of the province.

Large number of harvesters are now arriving and it is not anticipated that any shortage of help will occur.

ROLLING THE ECONOMY ROAD BEST PLAN NOW

You can't bounce a snowball. Flies stay single, And a rubber tire won't dance up and down on a nail or a broken bottle. Hence, the man who stretches his rubber knows a thing or two when it comes to rolling up mileage. He knows that:

Cutting of tires is most rapid when roads are wet. Try cutting a dry piece of rubber with a dry knife. Wet both and try again. Crushed stone, sharp curbs, worn edges of street car rails edges of holes in concrete, potholes, and other mischief when dry cut when everything is wet they cut several times as deeply. Similarly those bent nails that some thoughtless citizen threw out into the street with the ashes from his furnace will penetrate a wet tire more easily and deeply. If a cut goes through to the cotton fabric or cords it is best to have it repaired, or dirt and moisture will work in.

Light and heat cause rapid deterioration. Spare tires carried should always have opaque covers. Extra casings and tubes are best stored in a cool, cool cellar or closet. Don't run over all kinds of ash piles, broken bottles, nails boards and other rubbish you can find; even a harmless appearing paper bag may have a brick in it.

Don't park in that puddle of oil, oil stains rubber. Don't use the curb as a brake; it may break it. Road friction is responsible for more tire wear than any other one cause. Of course we must expect some wear if we are to use our cars at all but a great deal of wear now taken as a matter of course might easily be avoided by a little thought, care, and patience. Of course application of the brakes may easily take off more rubber than would wear off in a thousands miles of normal running. Likewise racing the engine and dropping in the clutch suddenly to spin the drive wheels for a "smart" start means a lot of rubber left on the pavement.

Head of New Industry

ANOTHER INDUSTRY FOR WAINWRIGHT IN NEAR FUTURE

Last week saw Messrs Price and Kanton two men well-known in the oil refining business, visitors to our town. They are in the hope of getting still further development and refining their value from the oil as it is obtained from the wells.

Mr. Price, who is president of the Price Oil Development and Refining Co. of Winnipeg, is now completing arrangements for the establishment of a fully complete laboratory for the already secured on Third avenue west of the many products to be (opposite the Buffalo barn), and no derived from Wainwright, and the efforts to be expended will be watched with great interest by all who are in the vicinity of the oil fields. Mr. Price's visit to Wainwright is the result of the Hutscheson, the well-known barrister venture of Saskatchewan, and other financiers.

Miss Kathleen Hart is leaving this week to enter business college in Edmonton.

Monday's heavy rain stopped the harvesting to some extent, and in a few places lodged some of the grain, but so far as can be learned no serious damage was suffered anywhere in this district.

As a result of persistent advertising it is pleasing to note that the Dwyer garage have orders on hand for a large number of cars and trucks. This week they have unloaded three carsloads of McLaughlins, Chevrolts and Pontiacs, and are expecting no less than 50 trucks by the end of the week! It sure pays to advertise!

"WE BUILD THE LADDER BY WHICH WE RISE FROM LOWLY EARTH TO VAULTED SKIES."

One of the most important lessons of life to learn is that success comes step by step and must continually be won. There are those who long upon the supposed fortune ones who have achieved places of influence and distinction, as though they had in some way gained a citadel in which they could stand secure against every attack.

In truth, all they have done is to gain another level of responsibility, in which they must make good.

Every day is one of test. Every day puts at risk all that has been gained. The greater the apparent achievement the more serious is the risk of loss. The farther you have climbed the more disastrous the fall.

As has been well said, it is not worth while to talk of the end of a period for you are always at the beginning, of a new one. You cannot rest content. You have been vigilant. You have been faithful, but fidelity is not active virtue which demands its daily sacrifice of any counter interest in its daily response in energetic service.

The man who has courage enough to set aside fond hopes, to forego many pleasures, or sternly to deny himself his love of luxury in order to achieve success is decidedly above the average man.

It should be remembered that the attainment of any goal—financial, social or any other character—must be by a step-by-step journey. "Heaven is not reached by a single bound." Also for one's opportunities and capabilities it is possible to set too lofty an aim.

Many men are failures because they are unable to reach a point set too far ahead of them, or because they are unwilling to make the necessary effort to accomplish what they have outlined as a life problem.

Other men with great aspirations give too little time and attention to the present position, with the mistaken idea that it is so far beneath their ultimate desire that it isn't worth while to put much into it.

One must go ahead step at a time—not attempt to jump a mile wide gorge when his best running broad jump record is less than twenty feet. You can set your goal as high as you please, but you must approach it steadily, surely by definite planned steps.

Imagination may permit one to ladder of success, but it is seldom done in reality. As the poet tells us, "We build the ladder by which we rise from the lowly earth to the vaulted skies, and we mount to its summit round by round."

By going upwards step by step, learning all there is to be known of each step in passing, only thus may one at last win the ability to stand as a monument of success.—Wampole's Monthly.

ELEVENTH HOUR FOLKS!

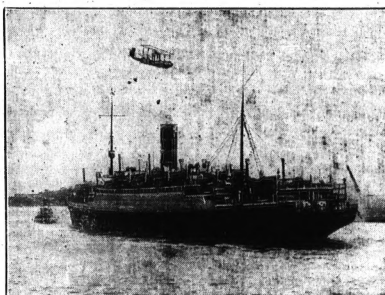

Did you ever realize how many "eleventh hour" people there are in the world. There is one who always reaches the depot just as the train is about to pull out, who attends the special sale after the best goods have been picked out, who puts on the screens after the flies have arrived and purchases a fly swatter when the last fly is about to depart. They are the last ones to procure their license plates in the spring and delay putting their auto in a warm garage until the water has frozen. They reserve their seats for an entertainment when there is no good choice left and arrive at the theatre after the curtain rises. They clean out their furrows for winter when a cold snap comes and order their coal when the coal dealer is packed with orders.

And last, but not least, they leave the renewal of their home town paper until the patience of the editor is nearly exhausted, and they are about to cut it before it is put in to the office with the necessary two dollars to keep their credit still good for the reception each week of The Star.

It will be well for our readers to study the Advt. on page 3 of this issue for the franchise for tenants and their families. Read this and act accordingly. This is occasioned by an amendment to the Town Act.

Catches Liner by Hydroplane

When A. O. Bridgen, of Winnipeg, missed his train from Ottawa to connect him with the sailing from Montreal of the Cunard liner Albatross on which his wife was sailing to Europe, he wired his wife to look out for him at Quebec, hired a hydroplane and made the ship in record time. The picture shows the hydroplane circling the Albatross as she slowed down. When the plane landed a motor boat assisted Mr. Bridgen aboard the liner, where he joined his wife for their European trip.

From One Grannie To Another

The Atlantic holds no terrors for little Kathleen and Yvonne Stevens, aged four and three respectively, who sailed unaccompanied from Montreal this week on the Anchor-Donaldson liner Athens, bound for Liverpool. "We are going to see our other grannie in Northumberland," they said. Their mother and grannie number one saw them safely aboard the Canadian National train at Cobalt after leaving Haldimand, Ont., and the children will be the special charge of the Athens's captain and officers until they reach their destination on the other side.

"MATINEE LADIES," with May McAvoy, is a Warner Bros. pictureization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS
Bob Ward, college student, works as a dancing partner for rich women in a New Jersey roadhouse. There he meets the prettiest, sweetest girl he has ever laid eyes on—Della, the cigarette girl. Recognizing his interest, she warns him against the mysterious and beautiful Mrs. Hammond, habitué of the inn, who finds her "thrill" in "hunting" Bob for her lovelorn apartment. Mrs. Hammond tells Bob she is an authoress, secretly in search of color. He stoutly declares he hasn't believed the gossip about her.

Mrs. Hammond had led Bob Ward, gently and insidiously, to commit himself in the matter of trusting her motives; to voice his candid opinion that she was a "square shooter." What more could she want? She continued, fignificantly:
"But women of my peculiar position are bound to come under the suspicion of little and evil minds, so I am going to trust to your innate sense of fitness, Bob, and speak quite frankly. To begin with, you are too nice a boy to be working at such a place as the Palladium Inn—"
"It's the only way I could find to go on and fulfill my ambition."
"Then I shall open a way to you to do so without demeaning yourself. I am hopelessly rich, Bob. But I am not going to offer you charity. I am merely going to offer you, as a sister would, the loan of plenty of money to finish your schooling and get set in business and the use of the apartment, meantime, to take care of your living needs and comforts!"

"Yes, I have heard that you keep a secret apartment."

"An apartment?"

Instantly all his former doubts and fears of this ravishing creature flocked back to reassess him. He remembered everything that anyone had said. Masie's sneers about the lovelorn, that he would be asked to share, sooner or later, if Mrs. Hammond liked him! Had the innuendoes been justified, after all? Was Mrs. Hammond proposing a dishonorable arrangement with him?

Hardly daring to breathe, his mouth a bit ajar, Bob stared wide-eyed into Mrs. Hammond's face.

Mrs. Hammond bore the scrutiny with entire self-possession.

"I know exactly what's running through your mind, Bob!" she chuckled, with a superbly simulated air of lightness. She was boldly resolved upon spiking all his guns, upon spilling all the wind out of his sails, by anticipating his knowledge and his arguments. She leaned toward him, her big eyes wide with feigned virtue: "Someone has warned you against this very thing! A 'lovelorn,' I suppose they called it!"

Bob nodded dully. He remembered that but a few moments before he had burst forth with stout declaration of belief in the innocence of her motives in all things. As a gentleman, as a man of character, he could not now betray a flicker of constancy in his face. He would be outspoken.

"Yes, Della, I have heard that you keep a secret apartment on Park Avenue. If it is true it is certainly puzzling. Why should a woman like you, of high social standing and character, want such a place?"

"So they have even traced me down to that!" She shrugged her beautiful shoulders contemptuously. "What creature!"

Impulsively she laid a slender hand on Bob's knee and stared with an injured, appealing manner full into his troubled face.

"Bob, surely their methods condemn their words! They have told their version. Let me tell mine. Naturally, people of immoral caliber jump to the most disgusting conclusion, always. But the simple and whole truth of this matter is that I have hired this apartment, with the full consent and knowledge of my husband, in order that I may pursue my literary work and sociological studies in the seclusion that my temperament demands. What with the press of social responsibilities, the constant interruptions of an elaborate household, the petty worries of life, I could not work at home without grave and uncessant distractions. This secrecy insures my privacy, guarantees my unbroken solitude and quiet in which to work. There's nothing strange about it, Bob. I am an author. As an author, I need certain desirable working conditions. Of course, you know that this is the case with many writers. Most of them have been put to some extreme to gain what I might call time freedom. Surely you know how Nathaniel Hawthorne, for instance, went up into his attic on a rope ladder—and pulled the ladder up after him. I have no rope ladder, and even if I went into the garret they'd ring a telephone extension for me! So I am forced to my present plan. There, Bob, my dear boy, try to have my whole story!"

Bob had listened attentively; his last doubts vanishing into thin air as her explanation unfolded in all its reasonableness and plausibility. Now Mrs. Hammond—lightly, yet with an artfully feigned note of earnestness which seemed to show how much she cared for his answer, how much she trusted his common sense—laughed and declared:

"Really, Bob, I ask you again, is my scheme so very strange? You must choose between the malign whisperings of a very poor grade of cynicism and my story. Come, boy, take your pick! Do you still think I am a horrid witch, an ogre, seeking to lure unsuspecting young innocents into my secret and fearful castle, to encompass their moral destruction?"

There was an elusive note of sarcasm in her merry laugh; a challenge, very carefully sent forth, to his sanity, to his intelligence.

Bob, completely taken in, sat bolt upright and exclaimed:

"Of course I don't believe any of the vile gossip I've heard. I never believed it. I know you're not an ogre!" Bob joined with Mrs. Hammond in a hearty laugh. It was all so ridiculous. He went on, chuckling: "I can imagine, though, Della, that you are the most temperamental sort of an author. You seem so high strung. You bet I know how much you must need quiet and privacy to work. Gosh, you'd go crazy in Mrs. O'Sul's boarding house, where Freddy and the rest of the tramp are liable to break out singing any hour of the night. I often wish I could have a quiet place to study."

Mrs. Hammond relaxed her perfect body against the perfect cushions of her perfect automobile—and laughed in that low, gleeful way of hers, deep in her velvety throat, for she was perfectly happy. She had won the first skirmish with his moral qualms. The main thing was to get him into her apartment. Once he was established there she could unloose the rest of her bag of tricks and vamp him down to the point where he would bend to her passionate will; where his emotions and passions, and the clean, strong body of his young manhood which she coveted, would all be plastic putty in her warm hands.

She closed her eyes for a blissful moment, to quiet the quivers that were thrilling in her veins. Presently she said:

"After all, Bob, you see, it will be a strictly business proposition. You are to consider my help in the nature of an advance royalty on your brilliant career; a loan to be adjusted later on."

While the generalities of the proposition had found approval in Bob's mind, there were certain details that caused him growing uneasiness.

"But, if you live here, Della, alone—how can I—will it be—right?" he stammered.

Again her musical laugh filled the luxurious interior of the limousine.

"You silly lad," she chided. "Of course I don't live there. I told you that I merely use it for a sort of working place, a studio. It's just a tiny thing, you know. Pretty though. You'll have it all to yourself, except that after a while I may ask your permission to come and work there at times during the day. Not yet, though, because I'm occupied with unavoidable social burdens for the present. The social service. You'll have nothing to do or worry about except winning honors with your degree and this making me proud of you and justifying my faith in you."

Your Face Keep it Young

The Profit in the Business of Looking Young

The business world and others do not size you up by looking into your bank book, but by looking into your face—always your face. Invariably, unconsciously, your face tells your story. Is it the interesting story of youth preserved, or the depressing story of youth neglected?

The little book shown above is dedicated to glorious, vigorous-looking manhood. In it a prominent Skin Specialist tells in an interesting understandable way how to care for the face—dealing even with the best treatment for the annoying little cold sore.

AND IMPORTANT TO THE CARE OF THE FACE IS THE CORRECT ONCE OVER SHAVE

The freshly stropped, super keen blade which after all gives the quickest shave, keeps the tender face from smarting for it does not scrape or nick the outer surface of the skin or pull at the roots of the beard. It lays no foundation for premature signs of age.

The Valet AutoStop blade gives you the correct shave. Use the same blade over and over—super keen like a razor should be.

Raising reindeer for commercial purposes in Canada will be undertaken this year by the Dominion Reindeer Co., with headquarters at Vancouver; the company having imported some 5,000 head of reindeer from Alaska. This herd will be located on the vast grazing areas between the Athabasca and Great Slave Lakes on the million acres secured for that purpose.

H. W. Lennox, Inspector for the Dominion Forestry Branch at Indian Head, says: "The demand for trees has been insistent from all over the west. This year we have orders for 8,000,000, as against 6,000,000 in 1926." Following his tour of the west, he said: "I find generally a more settled feeling. People are planning for the future. The old days, when farming was a here today and gone tomorrow affair, have disappeared. Farmers are planting trees, and wherever a grove of trees is found, there you will find contented homes."
